I. Introduction

Since the adoption of the UN Security Council’s historic Resolution 1325 (2000) on Women, Peace and Security in 2000, a lot has been done to integrate the gender perspective into the peace and security field and related fields. Seven further resolutions of the UN Security Council (UN SC) were adopted, which, together with the Resolution UN SC 1325, form the Women, Peace and Security Agenda. In practice, despite progress and awareness of the importance of gender mainstreaming on a number of different areas in ensuring international peace and security, a number of gaps remain.

On the occasion of the 15th anniversary of the adoption of UN SC 1325, a Global Study was prepared to present an overview of global challenges and experiences in this area. A study called Preventing Conflicts, Transforming Justice, Securing Peace demonstrates that the equal participation of women in the maintenance of peace and security is crucial for sustainable peace and development.

In order to increase the efficiency in the implementation of Women, Peace and Security Agenda, countries prepare national Action Plans or other strategic documents since 2005. This document was adopted by 76 countries, including the Republic of Slovenia. National Action Plans and Related Strategy Documents are aimed at achieving standards at national level and in external policy activities. The Republic of Slovenia adopted its Action Plan in November 2010 in order to link its existing national and international activities as part of a wider aspect on Women, Peace and Security.

Implementation overview of the Action Plan adopted by the Slovenian Government in July 2017, confirmed the usefulness and effectiveness of this instrument in the promotion of content in Women, Peace and Security area, both at home and abroad. It also pointed out some deficiencies that concern both the implementation of existing commitments and the need to adapt activities to adequately address new challenges. The Government of the Republic of Slovenia was therefore acquainted with the intention to prepare a new action plan for the 2018-2020 period.

In cooperation with the Ministry of Defense, the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Justice and the Ministry of Labor, Family, Social Affairs and Equal Opportunities; the Ministry of Foreign Affairs prepared the Action Plan of the Republic of Slovenia for the implementation of the resolutions of the United Nations Security Council on Women, Peace and Security for the 2018-2020 period. The draft text was also consulted with civil society and other stakeholders.

The overview follows the structure of the Action Plan and covers activities until December 2016. Within each of the three objectives of the Action Plan, is presented the fulfillment of commitments in the areas of gender mainstreaming in policies for conflict prevention and resolution of conflict situations, greater involvement of women in

1 Gender mainstreaming means systemic consideration of the differences between the circumstances, the situation and the needs of women and men in all policies and measures. In the context of sectoral policies, it is a strategy to take into account the needs and experiences of both women and men as an integral part of the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of sectoral policies and programs in all political, economic and social spheres so that women and men benefit equally and the inequality disappears. (Summarized on thesaurus of the European Institute for Gender Equality, available at http://eige.europa.eu/rdc/thesaurus (November 17, 2017).)
international operations and missions and the prevention of sexual violence against women and girls and their protection. Brief overview of the developments in the area of women, peace and security in the international context, is described in the Introduction. At the end of the review, an evaluation as well as the future recommendations and guidelines were provided. The overview is annexed with a table showing the comparison of the situation in the area of women, peace and security in November 2010 with the situation in December 2016.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Defense, the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry of Justice and the Ministry of Labor, Family, Social Affairs and Equal Opportunities, contributed to the overview that took place in the first half of 2017. In addition to these, the Ministry of Health and the Ministry of Public Administration were involved in the overview process.

The overview of the Action Plan has shown that the Republic of Slovenia has contributed to the promotion and implementation of UN SC resolutions on Women, Peace and Security at various levels, especially in international and regional organizations, and in the Western Balkan countries.

At the international level, women, peace and security issues were also highlighted by the highest state representatives (e.g. the President of the Republic, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Secretary of Defense, etc.). Among the promoters, the Republic of Slovenia had some noteworthy initiatives (e.g. declarations on the occasion of the 15th anniversary of the adoption of UN SC Resolution 1325 in the UN Human Rights Council), and has also organized several events dedicated to this topic (e.g. the panel on strengthening the women's role in mediation at the 3rd Seminar on Mediation in the Mediterranean in 2014, the panel of the Bled Strategic Forum on the issue of sexual violence in conflicts in 2015).

In Slovenia, a significant progress has been made in the field of education and training, as since 2011, the introduction of the women, peace and security topic was implemented in various programs of education and training of members of the Slovenian Armed Forces (SAF) at all levels, both at home and prior deployments to international operations and missions, including deployments of civilian functional experts of the Ministry of Defense. Also, these contents are an integral part of police officers and police members training before deploying them to international civilian missions. In 2015 at the General Staff of the SAF, a full time-job for the gender perspective counselor was established, followed by a network of gender perspective counselors in the SAF. The police have engaged effectively for a larger number of woman police officers trained for international civilian missions deployment.

In the 2010-2016 period, the share of women serving in international operations and civilian missions ranged between 6.8% and 9.5% in the SAF, and between 12.5% and 21.7% in the Police Force. While the proportion of women employed in the SAF and the Police Force did not change significantly, the proportion of women in decision-making positions, including in the SAF and the Police Force, is increasing. During this period, Slovenia ranks second in the number of women in the armed forces in NATO.

The new Resolution on the National Program for Equal Opportunities for Women and Men for the 2015-2020 period, includes a chapter on foreign policy and international development cooperation, which emphasizes the greater empowerment and urgent greater role for women in ensuring international peace and security, and special protection of women in conflict situations.

In the field of international development cooperation and humanitarian aid, more than 20 projects have been implemented in the overview period in the area of women's empowerment and their protection through non-governmental organizations in the Western Balkans, the Middle East, Africa and Afghanistan. Subsequently, in September 2017, the National Assembly of the Republic of Slovenia adopted a new Resolution on International Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Aid, which determines the promotion of peaceful and inclusive societies with an emphasis on good governance, equal opportunities - including gender equality - and quality education as one of the priority substantive areas.
The implementation of the Action Plan was somewhat less successful in the area of introducing new activities, mainly due to austerity measures. While education in the SAF and the Police Force on the content related to the Women, Peace and Security Agenda is systemically regulated, certain forms of education from all contents should be systematically introduced in other departments.

As a result of the developments and changed conditions in the international community or in Slovenia, the country during the reviewed period implemented a number of activities in the field of women, peace and security, that are not listed in the Action Plan. This includes the transition of a large number of migrants across Slovenian territory in the autumn of 2015 and at the beginning of 2016. The timely detection and instructions for the conduct of members of the Police Force and the SAF in the treatment of migrants and refugees, including the integration of the gender perspective, and the adequate staff training, a more appropriate treatment of migrants and refugees was facilitated. Also, the gender perspective is s taken to counter violent extremism.

The overview of the implementation of the Action Plan confirmed the usefulness and effectiveness of this instrument in the content promotion in the field of women, peace and security at home and abroad. It also pointed out some deficiencies that concern both the implementation of existing commitments and the need to adapt activities to adequately address new challenges. The Government of the Republic of Slovenia was therefore acquainted with the intention to prepare a new action plan for the 2018-2020 period.

I.2. Brief overview of the developments in the field of women, peace and security in the international context

Since the adoption of UN SC 1325, and especially since 2009, the awareness of the importance of a more consistent implementation of the Women, Peace and Security Agenda and gender mainstreaming in the field of peace and security, is strengthening and greater participation of women in decision-making processes and activities concerning peace and security is promoted. Particular attention is paid to the different needs of women and men and girls and boys during times of armed conflict and peace-building periods, as armed conflicts have a different impact on these groups.

Since 2000, the UN Security Council has adopted eight resolutions on Women, Peace and Security, which reasonably complement and expand the concept of women, peace and security. Substantially they can be divided into two areas: (1) strengthening of women's role in peace-building and conflict prevention, and (2) preventing and responding to conflict-related sexual violence, which is defined by these resolutions as a prohibited military tactic. With the presidential declaration of the UN SC, an indicators for monitoring the implementation of UN SC Resolutions, were adopted in 2010. The resolutions emphasized the importance of women's empowerment as the key to international peace and security, including their participation in peace and security area, the importance of prevention and protection against sexual violence, and the elimination of obstacles for equal participation of women in all areas. The mandate of Special Male/Female Representative of the UN Secretary-General was established to issue the sexual violence in conflicts along with a system of responsibility for the elimination of sexual violence (monitoring and reporting mechanism and a list of offenders (armed forces or joint forces) in armed conflicts that are on the agenda of UN SC. The international community has been aware of the devastating impact of conflict-related sexual violence on international peace and security, and the importance of the effective prosecution of perpetrators of sexual violence in conflicts.

On the occasion of the 15th anniversary of UN SC Resolution 1325, and on the basis of the Global Study, the UN Security Council put a great emphasis on new challenges in the framework on Women, Peace and Security Agenda. Therefore, in October 2015, UN SC Resolution 2242 (2015) was adopted, calling on the Member States and the UN for closer integration of the Women, Peace and Security Agenda, and the Fight against Terrorism and Violent Extremism (in order to take into greater account the different roles that women have as victims or actors of terrorism or violent extremism, as well as the prevention of radicalism), stressed the importance of effective control over the trade of personal and light weapons and the importance of consistent implementation of sanctions and concrete measures in the context of sexual abuses committed by members of peace keeping operations (this was upgraded by the UN SC Resolution 2272 (2016)). The Resolution 2242 (2015) established an informal UN expert group on women, peace and security. The UN SC included the gender perspective in many resolutions from other (new) areas, in the resolution on trafficking in human beings in conflict situations (UN SC Resolutions 2331 (2016) and 2388 (2017)) and in the resolution on young, peace and security (UN SC Resolution 2250 (2015)) among others.

A parallel overview of UN peace-keeping and peace-building operations also included the gender perspective. An important stamp of gender equality and women's empowerment is also shown in Sustainable Development Agenda by 2030. The gender perspective is also included in the New York Declaration on Refugees and Migrants adopted in September 2016. In order to increase the effectiveness of the implementation of Women, Peace and Security Agenda, a network of contact points for Women, Peace and Security was set up in 2016. Its objective is to exchange good practices and experience in the implementation of resolutions at national and regional level and views and ideas in their future implementation at international and regional level.

Regional organizations have also strengthened their policies on gender equality and the implementation of Women, Peace and Security Agenda. The North Atlantic Alliance (NATO), the European Union (EU), the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), the African Union (AU) and others, implement and develop the Women, Peace and Security Agenda at conceptual and practical level. In addition to the adoption of documents that direct the Alliance's action to integrate the gender perspective into all areas of the organization's activities, NATO also created the function of a Special Male/Female Representative of the Secretary-General on the Women, Peace and Security Agenda and established a system of male and female advisors and contact points in their organizational structures and in operations and missions. In 2015, NATO adopted the Military Guidelines on the Prevention and Reaction to Sexual Violence and Gender Related Violence in conflicts. The EU also intends to strengthen its own role in the international community and the Member States role at national level by modernizing the Integrated Approach to the implementation of UN SC Resolutions 1325 and 1820 on Women, Peace and Security and many other measures. Although the OSCE does not have a comprehensive action plan for this area, a number of activities have been undertaken to integrate the gender perspective into the different areas of the OSCE's activities and to develop national action plans in some partner countries.

In order to improve the implementation the Women, Peace and Security Agenda, systemic solutions have been introduced at national, regional and international level, such as appointments of male or female ambassadors, special male or female representatives (e.g. the aforementioned Special Representative of the Secretary General for Women, Peace and Security, and the Chief Adviser to the European External Action Service for Gender Equality and UN SC 1325), the creation of networks of male or female advisors and contact points for the gender perspective within organizations and on missions and operations. A number of networks have been created, for example, Network of National Contact Points for Women, Peace and Security, the Nordic Mediators Network, the Mediterranean Mediators Network, etc.
II. Action Plan for the implementation of the Security Council resolutions on Women, Peace and Security for the 2018-2020 period

II.1. Purpose, objectives, time period, structure and implementation method of the new action plan

The aim of the new Action Plan is to keep contributing to international activities for achieving gender equality in the area of peace and security and related fields (humanitarian aid and development cooperation, human rights and the rule of law), where the Government of the Republic of Slovenia is strengthening its capacity to integrate the gender perspective areas related to peace and security, and thus the implementation of the Women, Peace and Security Agenda at national level. The latter is not only important in terms of greater engagement of Slovenia at the international level, but also in terms of addressing the new challenges that Slovenia is facing on its own territory (e.g. dealing with a greater number of migrants and refugees and violent extremism).

The Action Plan is based on the findings of the implementation review of the Action Plan of the Republic of Slovenia for the implementation of UN SC Resolutions 1325 and 1820 on women, peace and security in the 2010-2015 period and takes into account important international and national documents relating to gender mainstreaming in the area of peace and security. Among these documents, in addition to the UN SC Resolutions on Women, Peace and Security, Global Studies on Women, Peace and Security, and other UN documents, and the EU and NATO documents also apply national documents such as the Declaration on Foreign Policy of the Republic of Slovenia and the Foreign Policy Strategy of the Republic of Slovenia, the Resolution on International Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Aid, the Strategy of the Co-operation of the Republic of Slovenia in International Operations and Missions, the Resolution on the National Program for Equal Opportunities for Women and Men 2015-2020 and the Mayor Directive the General Staff of the SAF for the implementation of UN SC 1325 and 1820 on Women, Peace and Security.

The purpose of the Action Plan is to connect various governmental and non-governmental stakeholders important for the implementation of the Women, Peace and Security Agenda and gender mainstreaming in the areas related to peace and security and their activities, and thereby strengthen the effectiveness of their implementation abroad and home. For easier responding and adapting to the situations in the international community or in Slovenia, the Action Plan period is limited to 3 years (2018-2020)

The Action Plan sets out activities in five areas that define topics from the UN SC Resolutions on Women, Peace and Security:

– Gender Equality and Women’s Empowerment: Transforming the lives of Girls and Women through EU External Relations 2016–2020 EU Gender Action Plan II.

1. Implementation of the Women, Peace and Security Agenda and the integration of gender in the peace and security policy,
2. women involved in peace and security area
3. women and girls protection before the conflict, between and after the conflict, and elimination of sexual violence and gender based violence related to conflicts
4. Education and training in the field of Women, Peace and Security Agenda,
5. responsibility for the prevention and prosecution of perpetrators of sexual violence and gender based violence related to conflicts.

In each of the areas, the Action Plan appropriately encompasses activities aimed at addressing emerging challenges, which in the past period have shown the need to integrate the gender perspective. These include migration, humanitarian crises, terrorism and violent extremism and climate change. In doing so, the Action Plan focuses, among others, on the exchange of good practices in areas where the added value of an individual stakeholder or the Republic of Slovenia is shown.

Within the areas, the activities are divided into international level and national level activities. Each activity has one or more competent institutions or activity coordinators defined for the activity that concerns the majority of stakeholders, and at least one indicator that will measure the performance of each activity.

Finally, the Action Plan identifies the ways of implementation monitoring and reporting. In order to monitor the implementations more effectively, annual implementation reports will be prepared, as will regular meetings of stakeholders at different levels.
