

“Women do not start wars, but our bodies are the battlefields; yet we are not consulted on peace and rebuilding our countries.”

Zainab Hawa Bangura
Above the Parapet,
March 9, 2015

“Women are not just victims but as survivors, they are the key actors for providing the mechanisms for change”

Charlotte Bunch
Women Confronting ISIS,
March 6, 2015

Madeleine Rees
Civil Society Consultation on the 2015 WPS High Level Review,
March 11, 2015

“Women’s participation and inclusion needs to be inclusive throughout the recommendations that reach the Security Council.”

Nahla Valji
Civil Society Consultation on the 2015 WPS High Level Review,
March 11, 2015

“Gender equality and women’s rights are at the core of the peace building process.”

Mavic Cabrera-Balleza
Civil Society Consultation on the 2015 WPS High Level Review,
March 11, 2015

Peace Women Leaders Meet and Greet,
March 10, 2015

“Women must never be used as a military strategy.”

Radhika Coomaraswamy
Women Confronting ISIS,
March 6, 2015

Amplifying the Voices of Palestinian Women within the WPS Agenda,
March 10, 2015

We carried all the wishes and messages from the women on our way to both the NGO forum at Huairou and the official UN Women's Conference in Beijing
Image from the Beijing Peace Train event,
March 13, 2015

“We cannot look at the root causes of conflict without looking at the structures of power and gender.”

Madeleine Rees
Above the Parapet, March 9, 2015

“We got our resolutions, but what about our revolution?”

Isabelle Geuskens
A Transformative Women, Peace & Security Agenda: The Need to Challenge Militarism,
March 11, 2015

“In any country where women’s rights are denied, then there is conflict. Those women face conflict from within.”

Ambassador Anwarul Chowdhury
Institutional Mechanisms, Human Rights and Armed Conflict: Assessing the Situation for Women and Girls,
March 12, 2015

