Implementation of Security Council resolutions 2139 (2014), 2165 (2014), 2191 (2014), 2258 (2015), 2332 (2016), 2393 (2017) and 2401 (2018)

Report of the Secretary-General

I. Introduction

1. The present report is the fifty-sixth submitted pursuant to paragraph 17 of Security Council resolution 2139 (2014), paragraph 10 of resolution 2165 (2014), paragraph 5 of resolution 2191 (2014), paragraph 5 of resolution 2258 (2015), paragraph 5 of resolution 2332 (2016), paragraph 6 of resolution 2393 (2017) and paragraph 12 of resolution 2401 (2018), in which the Council requested the Secretary-General to report, every 30 days, on the implementation of the resolutions by all parties to the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic.

2. The information contained herein is based on data available to agencies of the United Nations system and obtained from the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and other relevant sources. Data from agencies of the United Nations system on their humanitarian deliveries have been reported for September 2018.

II. Major developments

Box 1

Key points: September 2018

1. A significant intensification of military activity, including air strikes and artillery shelling, took place in parts of Idlib and surrounding areas during the first half of September. Civilians were reportedly killed and injured in areas controlled by non-State armed opposition groups and in areas controlled by the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic. Several hospitals and schools were hit by air strikes during this period.

2. On 17 September, the Presidents of Turkey and the Russian Federation announced plans to establish a demilitarized zone in the so-called Idlib de-escalation area. The agreement stipulated that heavy weapons and “radical terrorist groups” would be withdrawn from the zone by 10 and 15 October, respectively. The announcement was followed by a marked reduction in military activity in the area, and the suspension of air strikes. Civilians across Idlib and surrounding areas continued to face a range of protection threats, and massive humanitarian needs persisted.

3. The reporting period saw further deterioration of the humanitarian situation of some 45,000 people estimated to be in the Rukban camp, on the Syrian-Jordanian border. Sources inside the camp reported that three people, including two children, died during this period for lack of access to medical care. Reports were also received of a significant reduction in the availability of food and water in the camp. Because the provision of basic humanitarian assistance in the camp is increasingly urgent, efforts to deploy an inter-agency humanitarian convoy to the area continued.

4. In eastern Dayr al-Zawr Governorate, military operations against Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) in the Hajin enclave continued to severely affect civilians. The number of people estimated to have been displaced in the wider area since June reached 27,000. Humanitarian access to many of the makeshift sites hosting newly displaced people remained challenging because of insecurity, but efforts to scale up humanitarian assistance continued. An estimated 15,000 people, the majority civilians, remained in ISIL-controlled areas, exposed to ongoing hostilities.

5. United Nations humanitarian agencies and their partners continued to reach millions of people in need. From inside the country, the United Nations reached more than 3.05 million people with food assistance. No inter-agency humanitarian convoys were deployed in September and the bimonthly inter-agency convoy plan for September and October was not approved by the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic. However, United Nations agencies and humanitarian partners continued to reach people across the country through regular programming, including in several locations under Government control categorized as hard to reach. Cross-border assistance also remained an indispensable part of the response, and food assistance was delivered to more than 620,000 people from Turkey during September.

3. Since 24 February 2018, when the Security Council adopted resolution 2401 \(2018\), demanding a cessation of hostilities, military conflict has continued in many parts of the Syrian Arab Republic. During the month of September, there was a reduced level of hostilities in a number of areas, but air strikes, artillery shelling or ground fighting were reported in the Governorates of Aleppo, Idlib, Hama and Dayr al-Zawr.

4. During the first half of September, there was a significant intensification of military operations in the Idlib de-escalation area. From 4 to 12 September, air strikes and ground-based attacks reportedly killed and injured civilians in areas controlled by the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and in areas controlled by non-State armed opposition groups. Three health facilities, one of which had been deconflicted through agreed procedures, were allegedly hit by air strikes during this period. Three schools were reportedly damaged by air strikes or shelling, resulting in the suspension of educational activities in several locations across Idlib and Hama Governorates. Reports were received that between 17,350 and 27,500 people had been newly displaced in the Idlib de-escalation area.

5. On 17 September, the Russian Federation and Turkey agreed to establish a demilitarized zone inside the Idlib de-escalation area. The agreement stipulated that the demilitarized zone would be situated up to 20 km inside the Idlib de-escalation area, and that heavy weapons and “radical terrorist groups” would be withdrawn from the zone by 10 and 15 October, respectively.

6. After the announcement of the agreement, military activities dramatically decreased in the Idlib de-escalation area, and a cessation of air strikes was also observed. However, reports continued to be received of kidnappings, improvised explosive device attacks and other threats to civilians. The United Nations and its humanitarian partners continued to pre-position aid in preparation for the possible resumption of large-scale hostilities in the Idlib area and related mass displacement.

7. The reporting period saw further deterioration of the humanitarian situation of some 45,000 people estimated to be in the Rukban camp, on the Syrian-Jordanian border. Sources inside the camp reported that three people, including two children, died during this period because of lack of access to medical care. Reports were also received of a significant reduction in the availability of food and water in the camp, understood to be linked, in part, to military operations affecting road access to the area. In view of the fact that the last significant delivery of United Nations aid to Rukban was made in January 2018, discussions with the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and other interlocutors on an inter-agency humanitarian convoy to the area continued.

8. In eastern Dayr al-Zawr Governorate, military operations against ISIL in the Hajin enclave continued to affect civilians, the total number of people estimated to have been displaced in the wider area since June 2018 reaching 27,000. Humanitarian access to many of the makeshift camps hosting the displaced people remained challenging, but efforts to scale up assistance, including food and hygiene items, continued during the reporting period. It was estimated that 15,000 people, including a majority of civilians and ISIL fighters, remained in ISIL-controlled areas, and scores of civilians were reportedly killed and injured as a result of air strikes or having been caught up in ground fighting. Significant restrictions on civilians' freedom of movement in the area remained in place, and movement was also impeded by the intensity of the fighting in some areas.

9. In eastern Ghutah, levels of humanitarian need remained high, while the United Nations continued to face significant access constraints, hindering its efforts to scale up assistance in the area. The United Nations continued to provide food assistance, household items, trucked water and hygiene supplies and other aid through the Syrian Arab Red Crescent and other local humanitarian partners. Significant gaps were reported in relation to health services, as there were only two hospitals operational in the area, limited numbers of doctors, and insufficient coverage through mobile clinics. Restrictions around commercial activities were reported to have resulted in high prices for some key commodities. The public transportation system was reported to have been reactivated.

10. In the south-west of the country, internally displaced people returning to Dar'a city reported high levels of destruction, in particular in areas previously held by non-State armed opposition groups. Extensive damage was also reported in western rural Dar'a Governorate, where returnees' efforts to begin rehabilitating were further complicated by high prices for building materials. Access for United Nations personnel to the south-west remained very limited. Assistance continued to be provided through the Syrian Arab Red Crescent, technical line ministries and local humanitarian partners.

11. Some 152,000 civilians have returned to Raqqah city since the end of hostilities in October 2017 despite high levels of explosive hazard contamination. Humanitarian assistance in the city has continued to be scaled up, through international and Syrian non-governmental organizations.

12. The Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria met on several occasions with the Astana guarantors (the Islamic Republic of Iran, the Russian Federation and Turkey) and members of the Small Group (Egypt, France, Germany, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America); at those meetings he reiterated the United Nations responsibility in facilitating the constitutional committee and rules of procedure, as well as other matters of substance that are contained in resolution 2254 \(2015\), and the 12 principles developed in the United Nations-led Geneva process and endorsed in Sochi. On 10 and 11 September, the Special Envoy convened the Astana guarantors in Geneva with a view to moving the political process forward.

Protection

13. Despite a relative decrease in the intensity of violence, civilians across the Syrian Arab Republic continued to be severely affected by the direct and indirect consequences of hostilities. Air and ground-based strikes continued to kill and injure civilians and damage and destroy civilian infrastructure. The many civilian casualties and the scale of the destruction of civilian infrastructure remained a strong indication that violations of the fundamental rules of distinction, proportionality and precaution and, in particular, of the prohibition on the launching of indiscriminate attacks were continuing.

14. Explosive weapons continued to be fired into populated areas, killing and injuring civilians and destroying and damaging vital infrastructure. Explosive hazard contamination in populated areas killed and injured civilians and impeded humanitarian access. The use of improvised explosive devices in some areas added to the complexity of the explosive hazard threat and continued to hinder the work of humanitarian actors.

15. In Idlib Governorate and surrounding areas in Hama and Aleppo Governorates, incidents of military bombardment by Government forces and their allies over the first half of the reporting period seriously affected civilians and their well-being, prior to the Russian-Turkish agreement reached on 17 September to establish a demilitarized zone in and around Idlib Governorate.

16. Infighting between various non-State armed opposition groups in areas in the north-west of the country continued to have an impact on civilians, owing primarily to the use of improvised explosive devices in close proximity to civilians and civilian objects. Lawlessness and criminality that included threats, intimidation, kidnapping and killing continued to be reported in Idlib Governorate and other areas in the north-west. In areas of Dayr al-Zawr Governorate, civilian casualties were also reported as a result of the fighting, improvised explosive devices and explosive hazards.

17. The United Nations received reports of multiple air strikes hitting health facilities during the reporting period. On 6 September, Magharah Hospital in Kafr Zayta subdistrict, in Hama Governorate, which is supported by a non-governmental organization (NGO), was hit by an air strike resulting in major structural and equipment damage. Initial reports showed no casualties. The hospital was reportedly rendered out of service by the attack. Each month, it had been providing an average of 780 consultations, 50 admissions, 15 major surgeries and treatment of 200 trauma cases.

18. On 8 September 2018, another NGO-supported specialized hospital in Kafr Zayta was hit by an air strike which resulted in damage to the structure and medical equipment. Three ambulances were seriously damaged. Initial reports showed no casualties. The hospital was reportedly rendered temporarily out of service. Monthly, the hospital had been providing an average of 1,590 consultations, 113 major surgeries and 230 minor surgeries. The attack was the second in two days on hospitals in Kafr Zayta.

19. On 8 September 2018, the NGO-supported Nabdh al-Hayat hospital in Has village, in Kafr Nubl subdistrict, in Idlib Governorate, was hit by barrel bombs, resulting in damage to infrastructure and medical equipment. Initial reports indicated that two health staff and two civilians were injured. The hospital was reportedly rendered temporarily out of service. Each month, the hospital had been providing an average of 4,000 consultations, 200 admissions, 215 major surgeries and treatment of 1,200 trauma cases. Credible reports were also received of the Lataminah Hospital in Lataminah city, in northern Hama Governorate, being rendered out of service as a result of heavy aerial bombardment in the vicinity of the hospital on 9 September.

20. Several verified reports were also received by the United Nations of attacks on schools during the reporting period. Air strikes on the Jisr al-Shughur area early in September resulted in significant damage to several schools, leading to the announcement of the suspension of educational activities in the area on 5 September. On 10 September, in Ma'arrat district, in Idlib Governorate, two adjacent schools — Nidhal secondary school and Quds primary school — were affected by a rocket that released several cluster bombs which fell on both schools, causing damage to windows, doors and walls, and injuring five students. The incident occurred at around 8.30 a.m., when the students were inside their classrooms. The five injured boys were hospitalized and both schools were closed for three days.

21. During the reporting period, civilians across the country continued to be subjected to killings, arbitrary arrest and detention, deprivation of liberty, abduction, torture, and inhumane, cruel and degrading treatment.

22. In areas retaken by Government forces and their allies in Rif Dimashq and northern rural Homs Governorates, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) received reports of the detention by Government security forces of civilians who had remained in the Governorates and supposedly reconciled with the Government following the takeover of the area in April and May 2018 by Government forces and their allies.

23. In areas under the control of non-State armed opposition groups, OHCHR continued to document incidents of violations of international humanitarian law as well as human rights violations and abuses committed by those groups against civilians. Tens of men including activists, health service providers, journalists, and religious figures have reportedly been targeted by non-State armed opposition groups, including Hay'at Tahrir al-Sham (Levant Liberation Organization), in Idlib Governorate. Other victims were allegedly murdered after being accused by the armed groups of providing information to the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic or merely because they had been critical of the behaviour and actions of Hay'at Tahrir al-Sham. In one incident, a civilian man was publicly shot and killed by Hay'at Tahrir al-Sham in Tallmannis village in the Ma'arrat al-Nu'man area in southern rural Idlib Governorate on 20 September. The civilian had been taken and held by the group early in August and had reportedly been accused of promoting reconciliation with the Government. Tens of men have been kidnapped by non-State armed opposition groups since August, either for ransom or reportedly because the individuals targeted had been accused of promoting reconciliation with the Government. Their whereabouts remain unknown. ISIL continued to hold hostage civilians, including women and children, abducted from Shubayki village and surrounding areas of Suwayda' Governorate on 25 July.

Humanitarian access

Box 2

Key points

1. United Nations humanitarian agencies and partners continued to reach millions of people in need, including from within the Syrian Arab Republic. Humanitarian assistance provided from within the Syrian Arab Republic by United Nations agencies based in the country to regularly accessible locations in Government-controlled areas reached more than 2.46 million people with food assistance.

2. Although 1.5 million people remain in hard-to-reach areas, no inter-agency convoys have been approved since 16 August, and the September–October convoy plan was not approved by the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic during the reporting period. The Syrian authorities have expressed a wish to see a change in the focus of the inter-agency convoy plan, to allow locations that have recently come under the control of the Government to be targeted through regular programmes. The United Nations is currently ensuring that those locations are included in monthly regular programme requests, while maintaining that some hard-to-reach locations should continue to be targeted through the inter-agency convoy modality.

3. Cross-border assistance, authorized under Security Council resolutions 2165 \(2014\), 2191 \(2014\), 2258 \(2015\) and 2393 \(2017\), remained a vital part of the humanitarian response. In September, 348 trucks (13 consignments) delivered life-saving assistance to more than 968,000 people through cross-border deliveries. United Nations humanitarian cross-border operations through Jordan remained suspended in September.

24. United Nations humanitarian agencies and partners reached millions of people in need, including women and children, through all available access routes, including (a) humanitarian operations from within the Syrian Arab Republic, whereby humanitarian deliveries reach those in need without crossing conflict lines; (b) cross-line convoys, whereby assistance from within the country is delivered across conflict lines; and (c) cross-border deliveries, whereby assistance is provided to those in need from neighbouring countries (see table 2). In addition to the United Nations and its partners, the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and non-governmental organizations continued to deliver life-saving assistance to people in need. Local authorities in many areas controlled by non-State armed opposition groups also continued to provide services where possible.

25. As at the end of September the Syrian authorities had not yet responded to the proposed United Nations inter-agency convoy plan for September and October and no inter-agency convoys were deployed during the reporting period. The authorities have, however, stated a wish to see a change in the focus of the inter-agency convoy plan, to allow locations that have recently come under the control of the Government to be targeted through regular programmes. The United Nations is currently ensuring that those locations are included in monthly regular programme requests, while maintaining that some hard-to-reach locations should continue to be targeted through the inter-agency convoy modality.

26. Individual agencies continued to submit requests for single-agency deliveries to locations across the country. Such deliveries are undertaken by United Nations agencies based in Damascus to regularly accessible areas. In September, all 1,898 official requests submitted by the World Food Programme to the Syrian authorities to obtain facilitation letters for the transport of food assistance to locations across the country were approved. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) submitted 52 requests for facilitation letters for the movement of core relief items and livelihood kits, all of which were approved. UNHCR reached more than 2.7 million people with multisectoral support. The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) reached 528,000 children and mothers with primary health-care and immunization services. In addition, an estimated 64,100 children and pregnant and lactating women were provided with complementary feeding and micronutrient supplementation. Some 13,500 children benefited from education supplies and services, school rehabilitation and textbooks, and 6,400 children benefited from protection and psychosocial support services. Around 275,000 people were reached with reproductive health and gender-based violence services supported by the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) and its partners. Approximately 3.05 million people received food assistance and more than 1.2 million people benefited from water, sanitation and hygiene services and supplies.

People reached by the United Nations and other organizations through all modalities, September 2018

Organization	Number of people reached
Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations	24 000
International Organization for Migration	25 000
Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees	2 766 000
United Nations Children's Fund	2 000 000
United Nations Development Programme	1 038 751
United Nations Population Fund	278 745
United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East	195 000
World Food Programme	3 035 080
World Health Organization	1 293 000

27. Cross-border deliveries continued under the terms of Security Council resolutions 2165 \(2014\), 2191 \(2014\), 2258 \(2015\), 2332 \(2016\) and 2393 \(2017\) (see figure and table 2). In line with those resolutions, the United Nations notified the Syrian authorities in advance of each shipment, including its contents, its destination and the number of beneficiaries expected to be reached.

28. The United Nations Monitoring Mechanism for the Syrian Arab Republic continued its operations as authorized under resolutions 2165 \(2014\), 2191 \(2014\), 2258 \(2015\) and 2393 \(2017\). During the reporting period, the Mechanism monitored the delivery of 13 consignments by seven United Nations agencies, consisting of 348 trucks, from three border crossings: six from Bab al-Hawa (287 trucks), six from Bab al-Salam (58 trucks) and one from Ya'rubiyah (3 trucks). There were no concerns or questions about the humanitarian nature of the consignments sent. The United Nations provided 48-hour notice to the Government regarding all shipments. Once in the country, United Nations partners ensured that shipments arrived at the designated warehouses. Independent third-party companies contracted by the United Nations ensured independent verification of the assistance arriving at the warehouses and monitored the distribution and/or service provision. The Mechanism continued to benefit from the excellent cooperation of the Governments of Iraq, Jordan and Turkey.

29. Since cross-border operations began in July 2014, following the adoption of resolution 2165 \(2014\), the United Nations has conducted more than 874 cross-border consignments, with more than 22,063 trucks (15,107 through Bab al-Hawa and

2,307 through Bab al-Salam from Turkey; 4,605 through Ramtha from Jordan; and 44 through Ya‘rubiyah from Iraq). Those operations complement and support the aid provided by international and Syrian non-governmental organizations that provide services to millions more from neighbouring countries.

30. During the reporting period, humanitarian cross-border operations through Jordan remained suspended. However, the World Food Programme and its implementing partners delivered food assistance to more than 590,000 people from the two authorized cross-border entry points with Turkey. The World Health Organization also conducted health and medical deliveries, providing nearly 1 million treatments through the cross-border mechanism. In the northern part of the Syrian Arab Republic, UNICEF delivered winter kits, child protection assistance, nutrition, education, health and water, sanitation and hygiene supplies through a number of cross-border shipments. Primary health-care services were provided to more than 87,700 people through mobile and fixed health services. Over 20,000 children under the age of 5 as well as pregnant and lactating women were reached with micronutrient supplies. More than 22,000 children under the age of 5, as well as pregnant and lactating women, were screened for acute malnutrition; of them, 520 severely malnourished children received appropriate treatment.

31. UNHCR and its partners continued to enhance the response to the protection needs of internally displaced persons, returnees and other crisis-affected populations. By the end of August, 1,958,444 individuals were reached through protection interventions, including 793,908 individuals reached with general protection activities, 8,654 individuals reached with child protection activities, and 155,882 individuals reached through awareness-raising campaigns on prevention and response activities relating to sexual and gender-based violence in 12 governorates. As at the end of September 2018, the total number of functioning UNHCR-funded community centres and mobile units stands at 97 community centres, 15 satellite centres and 92 mobile units, supported by 2,370 outreach volunteers. This network provided protection-related services, including community mobilization, child protection, legal aid, the prevention of and response to sexual and gender-based violence, livelihood services and services for persons with specific needs, to benefit some 2.6 million internally displaced persons, returnees, members of host communities and other crisis-affected people across 12 Syrian governorates. As of September, 37,451 internally displaced persons in Damascus, Rif Dimashq, Suwayda’, Dar‘a, Qunaytirah, Tartus, Ladhikiyah, Homs, Hama, Aleppo, Hasakah and Dayr al-Zawr Governorates benefited from the UNHCR legal assistance programme, including some 3,000 internally displaced persons from eastern Ghutah (Rif Dimashq) and 1,100 from Afrin (Aleppo Governorate). Moreover, UNFPA reached more than 275,000 people, carrying out activities relating to reproductive health and the prevention of and response to gender-based violence and youth-related violence. Also during the reporting period, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) launched the third round of food distribution for 2018 on 30 August 2018. A total of 94,763 Palestine refugees received food parcels through the planned round of distribution; in addition, 26,377 refugees displaced from and/or affected by conflict in Yarmouk, eastern Ghutah and Dar‘a received ready-to-eat food baskets during the same period. There was no cash distribution during the month of September 2018. Owing to the financial crisis faced by the Agency, the number of rounds of cash distribution has decreased to three rounds over 2018 as opposed to the six rounds planned in the UNRWA Emergency Appeal.

32. The Russian Federation sent informational bulletins to the United Nations from the Centre for Reconciliation of Opposing Sides in the Syrian Arab Republic, which outlined the provision of bilateral relief assistance. Other Member States also continued to provide bilateral and other forms of humanitarian assistance.

Visas and registrations

33. A total of 96 new United Nations visa requests were submitted to the Government in September. Of those, 48 were approved, 47 remained pending as at 30 September (some were submitted late in the reporting period) and one was cancelled by the United Nations. Of the 22 previously submitted visa applications that remained pending at the beginning of the reporting period, 19 were approved in September, two remained pending and one was rejected. A total of 98 United Nations visa renewal requests were submitted in September, of which 48 were approved and 50 remained pending as at 30 September (some were submitted late in the reporting period). Of the 36 previously submitted visa renewal requests that remained pending at the beginning of the reporting period, all were approved in September.

34. A total of 24 international non-governmental organizations are registered with the Government to operate in the country.

Safety and security of humanitarian personnel and premises

35. Agencies, funds and programmes of the United Nations system continued to implement programmes in areas affected by frequent clashes among parties to the conflict, air strikes, the regular exchange of indirect artillery fire and asymmetrical attacks. As a result of activities relating to the armed conflict, significant populated areas became highly contaminated with unexploded ordnance, explosive remnants of war and landmines, which pose an elevated risk to the implementation of humanitarian activities in those areas.

36. Since the beginning of the conflict, dozens of humanitarian workers have been killed, including 22 staff members of the United Nations and organizations of the United Nations system, 18 of whom were staff members of UNRWA; 66 staff members and volunteers of the Syrian Arab Red Crescent; and 8 staff members and volunteers of the Palestine Red Crescent Society. Many staff members of international and national non-governmental organizations have also reportedly been killed.

37. A total of 27 staff members of agencies and programmes of the United Nations system (1 staff member of the United Nations Development Programme and 26 UNRWA staff members) were detained or missing as at the end of the reporting period.

III. Observations

38. The agreement of 17 September between the Russian Federation and Turkey to establish a demilitarized zone in the Idlib de-escalation area has averted the immediate risk of a humanitarian catastrophe. However, the continued risk of a rapid deterioration of the situation for the 3 million people in the area remains of very serious concern. It is absolutely essential to avoid a full-scale battle in Idlib. As the demilitarization goes into effect, adherence to international humanitarian law, including protecting civilians and facilitating principled humanitarian action, will remain critical. Should civilians wish to leave the area, parties to the conflict should allow them to do so, if at all possible. The agreement reached has the potential to provide a degree of reprieve to civilians. The alternative is certain to be massive human suffering.

39. At the same time, I condemn in the strongest terms the attacks directed against civilians and the abduction and deprivation of liberty of civilians by Hay'at Tahrir al-Sham and non-State armed opposition groups in Idlib Governorate. Such acts are in violation of international humanitarian law.

40. Safe, rapid, unhindered and sustained humanitarian access via the most direct routes is critical to avoid a further deterioration of the humanitarian crisis. Inter-agency convoys remain an important means of ensuring that people in hard-to-reach areas receive assistance and protection, alongside regular programming. Cross-border humanitarian assistance continues to provide an indispensable lifeline for hundreds of thousands of people across the Syrian Arab Republic. The United Nations continues to operate in the north-west of the country from across the border in Turkey to reach those in need, to provide additional support for the oncoming winter, and to ensure that aid is pre-positioned in the event of an increase in hostilities. Many others are reached in the north-eastern Syrian Arab Republic from Iraq with critical life-saving items not otherwise available. The humanitarian nature of cross-border assistance continues to be verified by the United Nations Monitoring Mechanism and its deliveries are confirmed on the ground by third-party monitors. It is vital that the modalities set out under resolution 2165 \(2014\) and subsequent resolutions, which allow for cross-border assistance to be provided to those in need through the most direct routes, be renewed in order to ensure that those persons continue to have access to the life-saving assistance they need.

41. I remind all parties to the conflict of their obligations under international humanitarian law to respect civilians and civilian objects, including medical personnel and facilities. The parties must also take constant care to spare them in military operations, including by taking all feasible precautions to avoid damage to infrastructure dedicated to education, health care and other vital services. I recall that any use of chemical weapons is unlawful and completely unacceptable. Moreover, the parties should ensure civilians' freedom of movement to the maximum extent that they are able to do so, and must continue to protect civilians whether they choose to move or remain.

42. I also call upon all parties to the conflict, all States, civil society and the United Nations system to cooperate fully with the International, Impartial and Independent Mechanism to Assist in the Investigation and Prosecution of Persons Responsible for the Most Serious Crimes under International Law Committed in the Syrian Arab Republic since March 2011, in particular by providing information and documentation. I reiterate that accountability for serious violations of international humanitarian law is a requirement under international law and central to achieving sustainable peace in the Syrian Arab Republic. I reiterate my call for the situation in the country to be referred to the International Criminal Court.

43. In view of serious ongoing concerns repeatedly raised by OHCHR with regard to the protection of civilians and other human rights issues in the Syrian Arab Republic, I continue to strongly urge the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic, in line with Human Rights Council resolutions S-18/1 and 19/22, to cooperate with OHCHR, including through the establishment of a field presence with the mandate to protect and promote human rights.

44. I remain hopeful that the agreement of 17 September between the Russian Federation and Turkey on Idlib will open a window of opportunity for the political process to move forward. This is a crucial moment to revive a credible and inclusive political process for the Syrian Arab Republic, starting with the establishment of a United Nations-facilitated constitutional committee in Geneva. The goal of the United Nations efforts continues to be to end the suffering of the Syrian people and find a sustainable and peaceful solution to the conflict through an inclusive and Syrian-led political process that meets the legitimate aspirations of the Syrian people. My Special Envoy, with my full support, is committed to realizing this political solution in line with resolution 2254 \(2015\) and the Geneva communiqué of 30 June 2012.

* In line with Security Council resolution 2258 \(2015\), the present description of incidents that are reported to have occurred during the month relates to compliance with Council resolutions 2139 \(2014\), 2165 \(2014\) and 2191 \(2014\) by all parties in the Syrian Arab Republic. The information is provided without prejudice to the work of the Task Force on the Ceasefire of the International Syria Support Group. The list of incidents gives examples of human rights issues of concern raised in the report. However, owing to the changing patterns of conflict and the loss of networks of credible and/or reliable sources in many conflict-affected areas, verifying incidents is increasingly difficult. The list contains only those incidents that were reported to the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and have been verified according to its methodology, and should not be considered comprehensive.
